

Artist Ana Teresa Fernandez: Art on the Border

Wed, May 28, 2014 -- 10:30 AM

Listen to the interview here: <http://shar.es/PzlyB>

Courtesy of the artist and Gallery Wendi Norris

"Taming," an oil on canvas painting that is a documentation of a performance in a sink hole in the jungle of the Yucatan Peninsula in Mexico.

Born in Mexico, artist Ana Teresa Fernandez has long been fascinated by the U.S.-Mexico border as well as identity and gender. Her first solo exhibition, "Foreign Bodies," mixes photography, painted images, and video performance of a horse plunging into water to examine how women's bodies have taken on political and social messages. Fernandez joins us in studio to talk about her work.

Host: Michael Krasny

Guests: Ana Teresa Fernandez, artist whose recent exhibit is "Foreign Bodies"

More info: Ana Teresa Fernandez's website , More on "Foreign Bodies"